Ben Bradley acts for Claimants and Defendants, in cases where individuals have suffered life changing injuries.

He is listed as a leading junior by the legal directories across his core practice areas of personal injury, clinical negligence and travel law. He has been recognised for his particular specialisms in catastrophic injury cases and complex medical negligence work.

His client care skills are frequently praised, being noted as someone who is able "to put clients at ease" and who "relate[s] well to his clients regardless of their intellectual ability".

Ben enjoys a busy practice, generally being instructed by the leading Claimant and Defendant firms in the country. During the lockdown period in 2020, he recovered in excess of £40m for various Claimants who had suffered various catastrophic injuries.

He is registered as one of Chambers' pupil supervisors.

Areas of Expertise

Personal Injury

Ben's personal injury practice cuts across a number of core sub-specialisms. His primary focus is in spinal cord injury and brain injury claims (acting both with leading counsel and alone).

He regularly acts for victims of historic child abuse; and for former members of the military who have suffered career-ending injuries.

Ben is regularly instructed to represent some of the country's leading race trainers and riding schools to defend personal injury/equine claims which are brought against them.
