offences investigation.

Sophie is an experienced litigator and court advocate, having appeared in significant jury trials concerning, inter alia, corporate bribery and corruption, money laundering and banking, insurance and mortgage frauds. She is often engaged to advise on matters pre-charge in addition to her court practice, acting on behalf of prosecuting authorities (SFO, FCA, NCA, TPR, MCA) and defendants in the crown and appellate courts.

Internationally, Sophie has acted in proceedings brought against civil servants by international organisations including the International Monetary Fund (IMF), International Fund for Agricultural Development (IFAD), UN Assistance Mission in Somalia (UNSOM) and the African Union Commission (AUC).

In domestic regulatory proceedings, Sophie appears regularly before the GMC, GDC, SRA, NMC, GPhC and HCPC, often defending individuals against the most serious allegations of professional misconduct and negligent care as well as acting for both prosecuting authorities and defendants in health and safety proceeding.

Areas of Expertise

Sanctions & Export Controls

In 2023, Sophie, with Alex Haines, acted for the Claimant in the first s.38 SAMLA challenge to a UK sanctions designation in the Administrative Court (Synesis v Secretary of State for FCDA [2023] EWHC 541 (Admin)). As a member of the UK Attorney General's Panel, Sophie is regularly instructed by OFSI, HM Treasury and the FCDO to advise on sanctions matters.

Sophie advises companies and individuals on all aspects of sanctions law across all regimes, particularly those affecting financial transactions and trade between the US, UK, EU, Russia and Iran.

She acts for and advises clients on sectoral sanctions risks relating to prospective commercial transactions, the interaction between UN Security Council resolutions and EU and US law, the EU Blocking Regulation, US secondary sanctions regime, the scope and effect of the Iran nuclear deal (JCPOA) and the post-Brexit statutory framework of the UK sanctions regimes. She also advises on reporting obligations to the UK's Office of Financial Sanctions Implementation (OFSI), as well as US, EU and UK delisting applications and civil or criminal penalties arising from sanctions breaches.

Business Crime & Financial Regulation

Sophie acts for companies and company officers regarding allegations of fraud, money laundering, bribery and corruption, tax evasion, insider dealing and sharp practices. She conducts contentious work, appearing in crown and appellate courts, in addition to her advisory practice, providing opinions on legal issues including financial sanctions regimes, market manipulation and sharp practices, financial regulation proceedings and pre-charge advice.

She has particular experience in proceedings arising out of the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 (POCA), acting for company directors and individuals in asset forfeiture and confiscation proceedings.

She has acted in a number of high profile asset freezing and forfeiture matters, often with an international component involving allegations of institutional corruption and corporate bribery. Sophie is often instructed to advise corporates in the financial sector on prospective or actual regulatory breaches, particularly with reference to the UK's Money Laundering Regulations and sanctions framework.

Given her experience in both commercial crime and civil regulation, Sophie is often instructed by specialist regulatory authorities to advise on the use and deployment of their statutory powers in a criminal and POCA context. Recently, Sophie has advised a series of UK regulators and prosecuting authorities in respect of the use of their powers to prosecute corporate entities and company officers for financial crime offences.

Sophie has a strong professional discipline practice. In domestic proceedings, she has advised and acted for those in the financial services, legal and medical professions in respect of misconduct investigations and contentious proceedings. She is frequently instructed in proceedings involving serious allegations of misconduct, sexual assault, dishonesty as well as health matters before the GMC, GDC, GPhC, NMC, SRA and MPS.

Sophie's complementary expertise in criminal and regulatory law has meant that when instructed to act in conduct allegations which involve criminal behaviour, she often also appears in the crown court.

In addition to her UK professional disciplinary practice, Sophie also has specialist expertise acting for civil servants in professional disciplinary proceedings brought before international administrative tribunals, also involving allegations of serious misconduct including professional impropriety, high-value fraud and corruption charges. She has acted in proceedings brought against civil servants by international organisations including the International Monetary Fund (IMF), International Fund for Agricultural Development (IFAD), UN Assistance Mission in Somalia (UNSOM) and the African Union Commission (AUC).
